Continuing Education Disclosure Form

In compliance with ACCME's Standards for Commercial Support, the APA, provider of CME activities, has a disclosure process to ensure that everyone who is in a position to control the content of the educational activity has disclosed all financial relationships with any commercial interest within the past twelve months (see glossary definitions). The APA has mechanisms in place to identify and resolve all conflicts of interest prior to an educational activity.

The prospective audience must be informed of the planners' and presenters' affiliations with relevant commercial organizations by an acknowledgement in published materials and by oral or visual disclosure to participants at live sessions. Disclosure by slide is required if audiovisual equipment is used for the presentation. If an individual has no relationships, the learner must be informed of that as well. The APA requires identification by presenters and authors of discussion of unlabeled uses of a commercial product or investigational use of a product not yet approved for this purpose.

Each planner and participant/author (including co-chairpersons, discussants, and all authors) must return a completed Disclosure Form, even if no relationship exists. An individual who refuses to disclose relevant financial relationships will be disqualified from being a planning committee member, a faculty member, or an author of CME.

ACCME Glossary of Terms

Commercial Interest

The ACCME defines a commercial interest as any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used on, patients.

Financial relationships

Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected. ACCME considers relationships of the person involved in the CME activity to include financial relationships of a spouse or partner.

Relevant financial relationships

ACCME focuses on financial relationships with commercial interests in the 12-month period preceding the time that the individual is being asked to assume a role controlling content of the CME activity. The ACCME defines "relevant financial relationships" as financial relationships in any amount occurring within the past 12 months that create a conflict of interest.

Conflict of Interest

Circumstances create a conflict of interest when an individual has an opportunity to affect CME content regarding products or services of a commercial interest with which he/she has a financial relationship.

ACCME Glossary of Terms

Commercial Interest

The ACCME defines a commercial interest as any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used on, patients.

Financial relationships

Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected. ACCME considers relationships of the person involved in the CME activity to include financial relationships of a spouse or partner.

Relevant financial relationships

ACCME focuses on financial relationships with commercial interests in the 12-month period preceding the time that the individual is being asked to assume a role controlling content of the CME activity. The ACCME defines "relevant financial relationships" as financial relationships in any amount occurring within the past 12 months that create a conflict of interest.

Conflict of Interest

Circumstances create a conflict of interest when an individual has an opportunity to affect CME content regarding products or services of a commercial interest with which he/she has a financial relationship.

Continuing Education Disclosure Form

In compliance with ACCME's Standards for Commercial Support, the APA, provider of CME activities, has a disclosure process to ensure that everyone who is in a position to control the content of the educational activity has disclosed all financial relationships with any commercial interest within the past twelve months (see glossary definitions). The APA has mechanisms in place to identify and resolve all conflicts of interest prior to an educational activity.

The prospective audience must be informed of the planners' and presenters' affiliations with relevant commercial organizations by an acknowledgement in published materials and by oral or visual disclosure to participants at live sessions. Disclosure by slide is required if audiovisual equipment is used for the presentation. If an individual has no relationships, the learner must be informed of that as well. The APA requires identification by presenters and authors of discussion of unlabeled uses of a commercial product or investigational use of a product not yet approved for this purpose.

Each planner and participant/author (including co-chairpersons, discussants, and all authors) must return a completed Disclosure Form, even if no relationship exists. An individual who refuses to disclose relevant financial relationships will be disqualified from being a planning committee member, a faculty member, or an author of CME.
